Liturgical Jottings

The Gloria

Gloria in excelsis Deo (Glory to God in the highest) is a most ancient and venerable hymn by which the Church, gathered in the Holy Spirit, glorifies and entreats God the Father and the Lamb. It is sung either by everyone together, or by the people alternately with the choir, or by the choir alone. If not sung, it is to be recited. The Gloria is sung or said on Sundays outside Advent and Lent, and also on Solemnities and Feasts, and at particular celebrations of a more solemn character. cf GIRM 53

Laudato Si'

Even when Eucharist is celebrated on the humble altar of a country church, the Eucharist is always in some way celebrated on the altar of the world". The Eucharist joins heaven and earth; it embraces and penetrates all creation.

para 236 Pope Francis 2015.

Focus on the Gospel

Today we continue our reflection on the sixth chapter of the Gospel of John. Again, Jesus speaks of himself as the Bread of Life: "I am the living bread which has come down from heaven. Anyone who eats this bread will live for ever". Again, amongst the listening crowd, there are murmurs of disbelief: "How can this man give us his flesh to eat?" Jesus gave no direct answer to the "How...?" but repeated his invitation to his listeners to have faith, to believe in him and to receive him: "I tell you most solemnly, if you do not eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood, you will not have life in you."

Jesus gives himself to us in the Eucharist so that we may be filled with his divine life: "He who eats my flesh and drinks my blood lives in me and I live in him." The Eucharist is meant to change us. In receiving Jesus in Communion, we are united with Jesus, and in him, we receive grace for our living, grace to nourish and strengthen us. We become more and more closely united with him. In today's passage of the letter to the Ephesians, Paul exhorts us to "go on singing and chanting to the Lord in your hearts, so that always and everywhere you are giving thanks to God who is our Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Meister Eckhart (1260—1328), a philosopher, theologian, and mystic who lived and worked in the Dominican Order is quoted as saying: 'If the only prayer you said in your whole life was "thank you," that would suffice'.

This week we have honoured Mary, the mother of Jesus, in the Feast of the Assumption. As we reflect on Jesus' teaching on the Eucharist, let us remember Mary's words to the servants at the Wedding Feast of Cana (Jn 2:5): "Whatever He says to you, do it." Let us pray to her for the faith and trust she had in Jesus.

Quotable Quote:

We taste you, ever-living Bread,
and long to feast upon you still;
we drink of you, the fountain-head,
our thirst to quench, our souls to fill.

— Bernard of Clairvaux (ca 1160) feast day 20 August

My Story

Story is important in our own lives and in our faith journey. The great truths of our faith have been handed down to us in story. The Hebrew Scriptures are filled with stories that tell us of God - the creation story reveals God as the loving creator, the Exodus story reveals God as liberator, guide, and protector. Stories were handed down in songs (the psalms) and rituals. We still listen to them today.

Over thousands of years, people have told stories of their encounter with God in their lives. For some it was a relatively easy road, others a much more difficult journey and God seemed absent. Sometimes our greatest insights come in moments when God seems absent and our journey has required commitment and patience. Recently I read this piece of wisdom: patience with others is love, patience with self is hope, patience with God is faith.

Stories help us in our faith journey - they enable us to reflect, to re-imagine. If we do not reflect back on our encounters with God, with Jesus, and with the movement of the Spirit in our hearts then our faith can be reduced to adherence to formulas and doctrines, instead of the realities they attempt to describe for us. Those formulas are invitations to go deeper. Our faith can become observance of rules rather than something that invites us to let the Spirit free, to deepen our relationship and respond in love.

There is a key incident where Peter was called to account for eating with Gentiles, a real 'no no' because that technically made him 'unclean', He told his inquisitors the story of a recent vision which challenged his long held practise and caused him to make a radical change. Starting from the beginning, Peter told his accusers the whole story - how he had been challenged to eat what was 'unclean' and how the voice had said:

'Do not call anything impure that God has made clean... Right then three men who had been sent to me from Caesarea stopped at the house where I was staying. The Spirit told me to have no hesitation about going with them. These six brothers also went with me, and we entered the man's house. He told us how he had seen an angel appear in his house and say, 'Send to Joppa for Simon who is called Peter. He will bring you a message through which you and all your household will be saved.' Acts 11:1-18

That story changed Peter and as the early church reflected on it, it brought about a radical change of mind and heart. Stories are not just ours alone - stories are the glue that hold 'us' together. It is through stories that we remember, we recall family and friends who have died and, through them, they in a sense take life again. We feel their presence and their continuing influence. Family histories and stories are important in our identity, in our coming to know who we are and to whom we 'belong'. It is the same with our faith story. When we gather together in community to share in the rituals which celebrate our faith, these stories are retold to us.

When we look back over our own journey, it is good to reflect on those who have contributed to it, those who have been our mentors in faith. One generation passes on its religious heritage to the next - one generation helps the young to hear the truths it received from its parents and grandparents. So it is always helpful to ask, who were my mentors in my journey of faith? What was their life experience that made them tell such a story and in that way? In turn, we tell our faith story and hope that it will resonate with the experience of our young people, that it will speak to them in their here and now as it did to generations past.

Excerpt from "Along the Track"

Feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary

Saturday 15th August

"Watch carefully then how you live, not as foolish persons but as wise...." (Ephesians 5:15)

A wise person recognises that all we have comes from God. A wise person thanks God every day for all His blessings. A wise person realizes that God has blessed us for a reason and He wants to be partners with Him in His work here on earth.
